A Small Town in France

Dear Cindy,

I'm now in a small town in France. It's a beautiful and quiet town. I talk a lot to the town's people here. They are friendly. They tell me about the food and people here. For example, they tell me that you don't have to go to a fancy restaurant in a big city for nice food. A small restaurant in the mountains often has great food for you. So the people here often drive several hours for good food. They don't think it's a waste of time. They enjoy nice food and food is very important to them.

Mary

※ fancy 昂貴的 waste 浪費

Which animals are color blind? Like humans, some animals have trouble telling one color from the other. For example, dogs are color blind because they can't see some colors. The colors they can't see clearly are red, orange, and green. When they see these colors, they think they are yellow and blue. Therefore, they can see yellow, blue, and gray.

Most birds have good vision except owls. Owls have big eyes, but they are color blind. Turtle aren't color blind. They can see things that are nearby. As for the sea animals, whales and seals are color blind because there is something missing in their eyes. Among the sea animals, sharks are the luckiest ones. They can see things clearly with their eyes.

Are bees color blind? The answer is NO. They can see colors that we can't see. The colors they can see clearly are yellow, blue, and white. That is why we often see them flying around flowers with those colors.

People think bulls get angry when they see something red, but they attack anything that is moving because they are color blind. The reason why bulls run towards a red flag is that they think it as a dangerous thing.
