J.K Rowling is a famous writer, but she wasn't always like this. For years, it was difficult for her to sell her book, but she kept writing. "I love writing for kids, and I don't want to stop," she said. Then one day on a train to London, she came up with a story for her book. It was about a boy, Harry Potter. This changed her life. Her story teaches us to follow our dreams.
